Ambulance on Emergency Run Has a Wreck

An Oakcrest ambulance on an emergency run and a truck collided early this morning at Fifth and Hervey Streets with some damage resulting to both vehicles.

The ambulance, driven by James Barton, was enroute to Hope Basket Factory to pick up Jesse Lee White, Negro, who was injured by a falling log. The truck was driven by Mrs. Brooks Collins of Spring Hill, who was taken to a local hospital, suffering from shock.

Following the collision the ambulance was able to complete the emergency run, taking White, whose legs appeared crushed, to the hospital for treatment.

Chief Brown and Officer Shirley of the City Police said neither vehicle appeared to be badly damaged. The ambulance had fender and bumper damage while the front of the truck was damaged. The officers have not completed their investigation.

Hope City Police reported the following weekend investigations:

Saturday on Highway 97 east an auto driven by Joe E. Purdy of Rodessa, La., ran into the back of a truck driven by C. S. Robertson. Purdy was first thought to be critically injured but was reportedly much better at a local hospital. Officers said the auto was completely demolished. The truck had only light damage.

Also Saturday a Corn Belt Hatchery truck driven by Earl Bain cut too sharply and knocked over a light pole near an alley on Third between Walnut and Main. Officers said.

Police also found a woman dead in bed at 821 Berry Street Sunday. She was listed as Charlene Turner, 38, a Negro and death was attributed to a heart attack. Coroner Rufus Herndon ruled. Earlier in the week Pat Easter, a Negro man, was found dead in a house on N. Dewey Street. Death was from natural causes, officers said.

Officers also arrested Hilary Spearman, Negro, following an altercation at a Negro night spot in which Eugene Gill was cut on the arm and face. Spearman was charged with aggravated assault. City Police said.

Congress Gets Emergency Plan for Education

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower sent Congress today an "emergency" four-year program to speed up and expand scientific education and maintain American leadership.

Its key provision was for 10,000 scholarships a year or "able" high school graduates who lack the financial means to get to college.

To provide an adequate staff of trained college teachers, the program calls for 5,000 graduate fellowships over the next four years.

The President cited no dollar figures in his special message to Congress, but the estimated four-year cost was placed roughly at $1,800,000,000 — about one billion dollars in federal funds and 800 million in matching funds put up by the states and local communities.

Mo's Scientists, Engineers
The President's budget called for an expenditure of 247 billion dollars in the fiscal year starting July 1—including 225 million in new money—to get the science-weighted education program underway.

The National Science Foundation would get 80 million dollars to expand its scholarship program, bringing to 119 million the total recommended for the support of basic scientific research and study.

The President said the new program would help supply "additional highly competent scientists and engineers."

Fire Bomb Tossed in Mrs. Bates' Yard

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Mrs. Daisy Bates, president of the state chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, told police last night someone threw a fire bomb into the yard of her home.

Police said the bomb was a paper carton with a label of potassium cyanide on it. It burned in the yard and did not cause any damage.

Board Okays Children's Colony Site

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The Arkansas Children's Colony Board Sunday approved construction of cottages and other buildings on its 406-acre tract at Conway.

The board agreed that its chairman, A. Nils Florentz, of Little Rock, the superintendent, David B. Ray Jr., and its architects should set a date for bids on the buildings.

Florentz said that would probably be March 15 and Ray estimated it would take a year to build the colony. The superintendent explained eight cottages for 256 mentally-retarded children, an administration building, kitchen, laundry, and school, and two residences would be built first.

Ray said he knew of at least 700 children who need training, and estimated the total in the state is about 2,000. He said the Arkansas board would probably try to limit its enrollment to educable children of school age at first because there would be more of a chance to rehabilitate them.

Arkansas and Nevada are the only two states without such facilities, he said, and Nevada is planning one now.

Summit Meet Issue Back in the News

WASHINGTON (UP)—The administration was certain to be asked today whether it has softened its terms for a "summit" meeting with the Russians.

The possibility that it had done so arose Sunday night when President Eisenhower's press secretary said on a television program the President wants diplomatic negotiations and a foreign ministers' meeting with Russia only to agree on what matters would be discussed at a "summit" conference.

A questioner asked if it were not necessary, in the U.S. view, for a foreign ministers' meeting to reach agreement on the basic issues of East-West dispute before a summit meeting could be held.

"They do not have to reach agreement," the press secretary, James C. Hagerty, insisted. "And as the President said, we would merely like to know what we would like to discuss."

Western diplomats in London felt Hagerty's statement was a softening of the U.S. view that a foreign ministers' conference must precede a summit meeting. Russia has been plugging for an early summit meeting without a foreign ministers' get-together.

Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zaroubin, pressed, meantime, to pay a farewell visit today to Acting Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. Zaroubin is leaving his post as ambassador to the United States.

It was possible Zaroubin had received new instructions from Moscow enabling him to reach final agreement with this country on a proposed new exchange of citizens, periodicals and radio and TV programs. If so, the agreement could be announced after his meeting with Herter.

Veteran Group Cites Negroes at Central

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—The nine Negro students who integrated Central High School under paratrooper protection last fall were presented, Americanism awards by the American Veterans Committee.

The racially integrated Veterans' group annually presents the citation to the person who, in the organization's opinion, made significant contributions to democracy in the previous year.

In presenting the awards before an overflow crowd of more than 1,200 in one of the city's largest Negro churches, Cal Patterson of Cleveland, Ohio, said "few have displayed greater courage" than the "Little Rock nine."

Patterson, a Cleveland industrialist, is chairman of the AVC's Americanism committee.

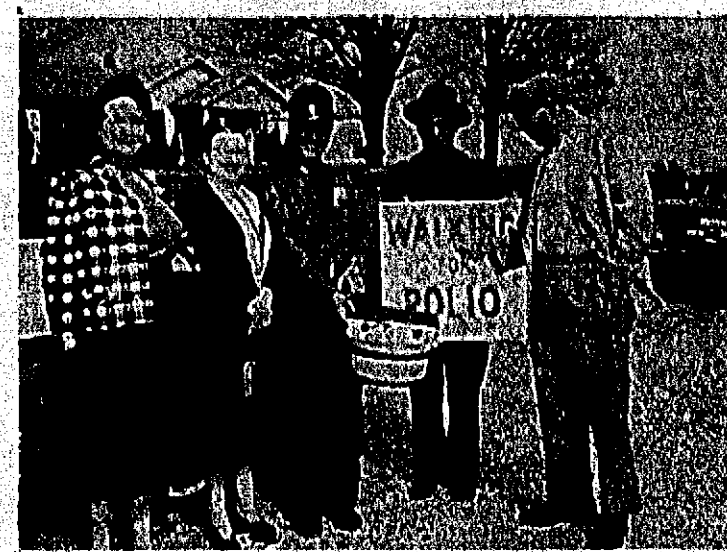

Earlier, William H. Ming of Chicago, a national committee chairman, lauded a "blast" at "other veterans' organizations which presented its Americanism award to Clay Faubus." The Arkansas department of the American Legion Sunday gave such a plaque to Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus.

Faubus used National Guardsmen at first to bar Negroes from Central High.

"That's one of the ways in which we are different from other veterans' organizations," said Ming.

Today's award was the first the AVC has given to a group of persons rather than to an individual. In other years, the citation has gone to such persons as Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan and to Bernard Baruch.

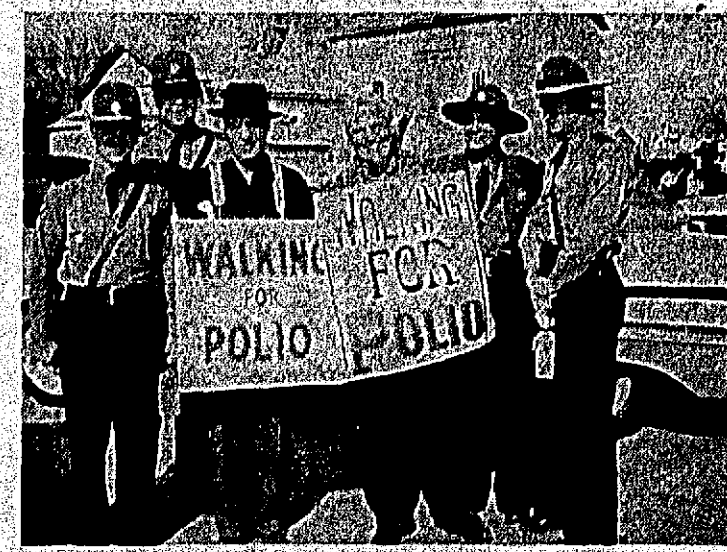

Polio Walk Ends in a Tie

A DEAD HEAT was the decision as Sheriff Jimmy Cook of Hempstead and Treasurer Philes Orren of Nevada County arrived in Emmet shortly after 1 p. m. today. Each man had walked the eight miles to Emmet and had netted about $1,400 for each county's polio drive. The men started their walkathon at 8 a. m. today and folks in both counties kept them walking with contributions that figured about 10c a step. Both men volunteered to walk the distance and Hempstead Drive Chairman James Barton today highly commended both for their efforts in behalf of the Polio Campaign.

Opposition to National Debt Increase

By UNITED PRESS

The administration's request that Congress raise the legal ceiling on the national debt by five billion dollars ran into opposition today in the Senate Finance Committee.

The House overwhelmingly approved the request last week, but Chairman Harry F. Byrd (D-Va.) of the Senate committee suggested that the increase be held to three billion dollars.

He did so during testimony by Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson on the administration's request. Byrd said he did not consider the five-billion increase justified unless the administration expects a "substantial deficit" in the next fiscal year.

The administration's budget anticipates a 500-million-dollar surplus.

Byrd suggested that Anderson consider the lower figure and report back before the Senate committee votes on the House-approved bill.

The existing limit on the federal debt is 275 billion dollars. It would be raised to 280 billion until June 30, 1959, under the House bill; to 270 billion under Byrd's proposal.

Other congressional news:
Education: President Eisenhower asked Congress in a special message on education to approve an "emergency" four-year program of federal aid to speed up and expand scientific education. He called for 10,000 scholarships a year to help deserving students who lack financial means to get to college. He also asked for 5,000 graduate fellowships to increase the number of trained college teachers.

Missile Boss Claims His Job Is Best

By VERN HAUGLAND

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—The man who bosses the missile test center from which the United States eventually will launch its first earth satellites says he has the best job in the Air Force.

"It's certainly the most interesting job in this outfit," declared Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, the trim, handsome officer who was Gen. Eisenhower's key weather man for the World War II invasion of Europe.

Yates commands a vast complex of test equipment, guards a huge array of multimillion-dollar weapons in various stages of development, and supervises the activities of a large force of scientists, technicians, and Air Force, Army and Navy personnel.

The Air Force operates the test center but all the services make use of it.

"There is no interservice rivalry here," said Yates, "and if it starts we'll stop it."

"I am very proud of the way these fellows of all the services play ball."

This is the launching ground for giant ballistic missiles such as the Atlas, Thor and Jupiter and for "cruise" or air-breathing missiles like the Bomarc and Snark. The range extends 5,000 miles out into the Atlantic.

It is Yates' mission to provide orderly and speedy service for the testing.

Bates became director of weather service for the strategic air forces in Europe in 1944 and served on Eisenhower's staff through the Normandy invasion. One of his most difficult experiences was that of forecasting weather for the invasion. Because of the weather, the Normandy landings had to be delayed for 24 hours.

Yates became chief of the Air Weather Service in Washington in 1945 and remained in that post until 1950. Then, because of his technical background, he was appointed assistant deputy chief of staff for development, and in April 1951 became director of research and development.

Slim and in splendid physical condition, the general weighs 150 pounds and is 5 feet 7½. His black hair is streaked with gray and he has a small mustache.

Yates is married to the former Gertrude L. Hansen of San Antonio, Tex. They have a daughter and a son.

engineers vitally needed by the country at this time."

"Our immediate national security aims to continue to strengthen our armed forces and improve the weapons at their command—can be furthered only by the efforts of individuals whose training is already far advanced," he said.

"But if we are to maintain our position of leadership, we must see to it that today's young people are prepared to contribute the maximum to our future progress. Because of the growing importance of science and technology, we must necessarily give special—but by no means exclusive—attention to education in science and engineering."

Essential to Security
Marion B. Folsom, secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said the "survival of our freedom" may be at stake in the nation's classrooms.

He said the proposals outlined by the President were "an essential part of our national security effort."

"Meeting the country's educational needs—now and in the future—is a job for everyone," he said.

The heart of the President's program was the recommended provision of 10,000 federal scholarships each year for the next four years.

The college scholarships would be financed by the federal government but administration of them would be handled by the states. Scholarships would be allotted among the states on a population basis.

It would not be compulsory for students to promise to study science or mathematics but the states would be encouraged to give preference to students with "good preparation or high aptitude" in those two fields.

red by bomb attacks on the U.S. embassy here and new propaganda blasts by the Soviet Union.

Informed sources said Dulles would open the door for further U.S. aid to the four Moslem members of the pact—Iran, Iraq, Turkey and Pakistan—but would make "no dramatic or flamboyant plans" during the 3½ day session.

The promised U.S. aid is likely to be smaller than that asked by the Moslem nations which with Britain form the anti-Communist pact. The aid is needed for building communications, especially highways between the nations and repairing impeded oil pipelines.

The pact members indicated they would make a strong appeal to the United States to join the pact but Dulles was unwilling to join in full. He is here as an "observer" with the United States subscribing only to the military, economic and anti-subversive committees of the pact.

One of the two bomb attacks came shortly before midnight when unknown terrorists threw a bomb which damaged a warehouse on the embassy grounds.

Navy May Set Up Satellite by Midweek

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)

Navy missilemen who have struggled for days to put a Vanguard rocket into the air with a U.S. satellite in its nose hoped today their bird will fly by midweek.

The weary but determined rocketeers worked in official secrecy until late Sunday night trying to replace parts and overcome mechanical difficulties which kept the slender Vanguard grounded and held back this nation's hopes of matching the Russian Sputnik, which ironically whirled over Cape Canaveral while they worked.

A little can be told today about the sweat and toil spent on new efforts to launch an American satellite rocket "with silent encouragement from watchers on the benches. The story of the tense, behind-the-scenes battle against weather and troubles in the rocket came from an authoritative but unquotable source for the first time Sunday night.

It was the first confirmation that attempts to launch the slender rocket actually were under way. Four times—starting on Thursday—it had seemed obvious to watchers on nearby benches that the launching team was on the verge of triggering the "moon" launcher.

Each time the all-time signs were there—great clouds of liquid oxygen boiling around the rocket, flashing red lights, moving gantry tower—but the 72-foot Vanguard failed to blast up from its launching pad.

The source revealed that troubles stemming from a siege of foul weather had frustrated the launching efforts at first, and later caused mechanical troubles due to the rocket's fuel standing too long in the tanks while crews waited for skies to clear.

He said a final launching attempt scheduled Sunday was suspended "the all-time for correction of mechanical faults which have developed over the week-end."

He said the Vanguard still is expected to be launched "within a few days."

Young Democrats Schedule Meet

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—An organizational meeting of a Young Democrats Club of Little Rock is scheduled tonight and a pre-organizational meeting for a statewide movement is set for Feb. 12.

Griffith said a representative of Gov. Orval Faubus will attend the meeting tonight.

There are about 24,000 miles of natural gas pipeline in Texas.

Probe of U. S. Agencies Gets Underway

WASHINGTON (UP)—House

investigators today kicked off their long-awaited investigation of the government's "quiet" scale investigation of charges of "official misconduct" in the agencies.

This phase of the investigation won't take place, Moulder said, until the subcommittee makes a "general" survey of the operation of each of the six agencies.

The investigation began after a committee staff report said members of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) had accepted the use of color TV sets and travel expense money from radio and television broadcasters.

Chairman Moulder and Rep. Peter F. Mack (D-Ill.), a subcommittee member, agreed the facts should be made public if any members of Congress have made "improper" attempts to influence government agencies. But both denied any knowledge of such cases.

The first witness scheduled to testify today was James R. Duff, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB). Later today, Chairman Howard Call Press of the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) was also scheduled to testify.

Besides the CAB, FCC and ICC, the subcommittee also is investigating the Federal Power Commission, Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Brother of the President Succumbs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—Arthur Eisenhower, the President's oldest brother and forerunner for a subsequent pattern of a family success, died Sunday night of a heart attack at 71.

The former banking executive had been in failing health for almost a year, but his death was unexpected. He had not complained of feeling ill when shortly after 7:30 p.m. e.s.t. he collapsed in the bathroom of his suburban home. Friends said Eisenhower had planned to fly to New York today.

A family spokesman said funeral arrangements would not be completed until late today. In Washington, President Eisenhower learned of his brother's death at the White House and called Mackay Callahan, Arthur's nephew, to a dinner. "Arthur" said the President would fly to Kansas City sometime today.

Dr. Joseph Welker, Arthur's son-in-law's physician, said the thin-framed businessman had suffered from an insufficient heart for a long while.

Eisenhower, who rose from a tary of State John Foster Dulles' foreign policy. Many western Europeans consider him too rigid in his attitude toward Russia.

President Eisenhower still is liked and respected as an individual, but there is some feeling that he has surrendered his leadership.

The barrage of letters from Russian Premier Nikolai Bulganin to European leaders has had its effect. These letters demanded another summit conference, and were released in Europe the same day Eisenhower delivered his state of the Union message. In England and France newspapers played the Bulganin notes over the Eisenhower message.

Here is a brief country-by-country rundown:

England: The British favor a world disarmament conference at the summit. The Conservative government is looking desperately for ways to save money. But it does not want to commit political suicide by cutting welfare services. Therefore, armed services and missile programs probably will be among the first to feel the economy pinch.

France: The morale of the French is as gray as the winter sky. Rents are high, other costs are soaring, new housing is almost non-existent. Premier Felix Giscard is given practically no chance of stabilizing the government and the million dollar a day war in Algeria now is closer to five million, many Frenchmen are convinced Algeria is lost anyway.

Italy: Italians give Eisenhower credit for "saving" the recent NATO summit meeting in Paris. They feel it would have marked the virtual end of NATO without him. But they also feel his illnesses have weakened his leadership. Italy is in the midst of an economic boom, but it could be boom and bust depending on the success or failure of its big new methane gas industry.

Switzerland: Officially neutral but spiritually strongly pro-Western. The Swiss regard the recently touted Communist proposal for a missile-free belt through central Europe as meaningless.

Germany: Prosperous West Germany would prefer to talk rather than risk another war. "We tried it once with guns," they say. "Now let's try it with butter." Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's unquestioned leadership cuts across party lines, but Germans themselves say political chaos could result when he goes.

Austria: Austria's affection for the United States is unswerving, but a bad taste has been left over from last winter's Hungarian revolt. Austrians claim that strong U.S. leadership then might have freed all of the Russian satellite without danger of a general war.

Two of Arthur's brothers, Paul and Roy, predeceased him in death. Paul, an infant, Roy, who lived near Abilene at Junction City, Kan., died in the 1940s. His surviving brothers include the President, Edgar, Milton, and Earl.

"To best serve the people of this community I maintain a stock of carefully selected merchandise. To be able to recommend the best product for every need, it is part of my training to know the standards of quality and measure that have been established by science and experience. When I order goods my selection is based on the known merits of these widely recognized standards. Then I advertise to give people the news of my store. Because I know that nearly everybody reads a newspaper I use newspaper advertising regularly. When people pay for newspapers they read them carefully for all of the news that is interesting to them. When my ads are new and contain useful information I know that people will read them because they are news."

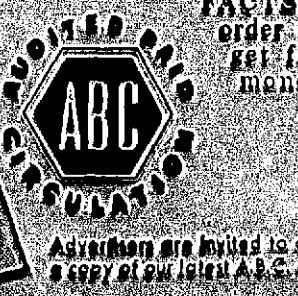

Another fact that merchants like about newspaper advertising is that they can buy it on the basis of known values that are just as definite as the measures of weight and quality that apply to merchandise which they handle.

Businessmen cannot afford to speculate with advertising. When they buy newspaper space they can make their investments on the strength of circulation facts and figures that are verified. It is good business practice to buy advertising by such methods just as it is good business to buy and sell merchandise on the basis of known standards.

Harriman Asks Huge Tax Hike for New York

By CHARLES BUMAS

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Gov. Averell Harriman today sent the New York Legislature a record-shattering $1,800,000,000 budget that calls for a 43-million boost in income tax—up to $35 a taxpayer.

He also warned the lawmakers that, unless they raised the state gasoline tax from 4 to 6 cents a gallon, the state would soon have to cut back its big highway construction program.

The income tax increases would take effect on retroactive due April 15, if the Legislature's Republican majorities are willing to raise taxes in this election year.

GOP leaders have indicated, to the contrary, that they will send Harriman a bill that would hold taxes at the current level. A veto would be used against him in his drive for re-election next fall.

The Democratic governor said he would have to draw $123,000,000 from bond funds and $90,300,000 from construction reserves to balance his budget. State spending would be increased by 142 million dollars in the fiscal year beginning April 1.

On the other hand, Harriman proposed to continue a $1,300,000 tax abatement for small businesses and a $750,000 easement for bus companies to help them "in resisting the current economic decline."

His new spending proposals included:

1. An extra $4,500,000 in school aid this year and 12 million more annually thereafter. This would come on top of a mandatory $47,600,000 boost.

2. Adding 151 men to the state police force to crack down on gangsters and speeders, and expanding highway safety programs, at a total cost of $1,800,000.

3. Increasing state aid to community colleges by $10,700,000 and giving the state university $3,000,000 more to expand its teaching staff.

Klan Plans a Rally of Some 5,000 Persons

MARION, S. C. (AP) Ku Klux

Klan leader James Cole, whose last rally near Maxton, N. C., was shot up and dispersed by armed Indians, says the KKK will gather "not less than 5,000 Klansmen" for another rally in that area within a month.

"We don't expect to be broken up again," Cole said at his home here. "This time, there will be more Klansmen than there will be Indians and I don't expect trouble from the Indians."

Hundreds of Lumbec Indians, incensed by reports that the Klan's planned rally near Maxton Jan. 18 was intended as a warning to them against race mixing, converged on the group of about 50 Klansmen with warhorns and gunfire. No one was seriously hurt, but state police had to rescue the Klansmen and pack them off home in their automobiles.

The 33-year-old Cole—who calls himself a Southern Free Will Baptist minister—is under indictment in Robeson County, N. C., site of the meeting on charges of inciting riot. He has announced he will fight extradition.

"Klansmen from all over the South are pretty upset," Cole declared. "I've had offers of 3,000 men from Texas (for another Robeson County rally) and offers of men from Kentucky and South Carolina."

"It will be the greatest rally the Klan has had," he said.

At Pembroke, N. C., Simeon Oxendine—a leader of the Indian demonstration against the Klan and son of Pembroke's Indian mayor—remarked when told of Cole's plans: "He said that did her well. We'll just wait and see."

Cole also said a top Klan official from Virginia—identified by a Robeson County source—as James F. Milligan of Newport News—visited him this weekend to discuss plans for another Maxton rally.

At Newport News, Milligan said a full-scale Klan meeting is planned in that area within the next three weeks, with Cole to attend.

CANYON, Tex. (UP)—Hurdling another barrier in its club toward "major" status in football, West Texas State today signed to meet Virginia Tech this year. State meets five other "major" opponents—Texas Tech, Arizona State, Arizona, Hardin Simmons and Texas Western—next fall. The game with Virginia Tech will be played at Ruanoke, Va., Sept. 20.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Be a Worry Wart Mate Sounds Wholesome

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a young wife of 12 expecting a baby in a few months. My husband, a sailor, has just been sent to Japan and won't be home for 8 months. I don't think sailors are true to their wives, although he vowed he'd be true to me. Do you think I can trust him?

MIRIAM G.

Dear Miriam: Fidelity isn't a matter of career, business or geography. Men aren't unfaithful because they're in the Navy, Army or because they're traveling salesmen. Loyalty is a matter of personality, not occupation.

Of course your young husband can be true to you, and undoubtedly will be. It's up to you to see that he is. Write him often—every day if possible. Write long, cherry letters and never, never ask, "Are you true to me?" Or "Do you love me?" These things you know to be true; don't question them. Tell him about your preparations for the baby, send plenty of local news, with newspaper clippings, photos, etc. Don't ever let him know if you're discouraged, blue or doubtful. Keep up his morale, and instead of the boy you sent away, you'll get back a man.

Dear Dorothy Dix: An old pal of mine with whom I was very close all through school, and in the Army, became ill two years ago and was sent to a mental hospital. His family withheld his whereabouts from everyone, but now I learn he's about to come home. My fiancée says I shouldn't continue our friendship as he might become violent some day. I know he'll come to me first, since we were such close buddies. Should I break with him completely, continue where we left off, or what?

J. J.

Dear J. J.: What a horrible world this would be if it had enough sometimes if friends turned against us just because we were unfortunate in one respect or another. Your fiancée is remarkably lacking in the feminine quality of compassion. I hope you have enough for both. Pardon me if I doubt the girl's reasons; I think she's just plain jealous of an old friend. Use your own judgment on this. I can't be your conscience.

Dear Dorothy Dix: After going with Rob for several months, and falling in love with him, I find he is married. He claims his wife is getting a divorce and the only reason he didn't tell me he was married was because he knew I wouldn't go with him if I knew he was married. Should I continue going out with him?

RANDY

Dear Randy: You're very foolish to let a man who can't marry you monopolize your affections and keep you away from men with honorable intentions. If you wait around for that divorce to come through, you may be an old lady before you ever get a chance to say "I do!"

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a school teacher who is rapidly approaching the half century mark. I've always wanted to get married, but never found a willing man. Now I've found one! Only trouble is he's 20 years younger than I. My friends advise me against marrying him. I think they're just jealous because most of them are unmarried, too. Do you agree with them?

Dear G. L.: Couldn't agree more. No man marries a woman 20 years older than he unless he's looking for someone to take care of him or wants a safe berth in case of storm. Your young friend probably figured that after nearly 20 years of teaching you must have quite a stack. Don't let yourself be carried into a foolish marriage.

What's What on Television Networks

By WILLIAM EWALD

United Press Staff Correspondent NEW YORK (UP)—Six Caesar made his ABC-TV debut Sunday night in a half-hour format that seemed all too brief. It was a little like being served an appetizer and then denied the main course.

I would say the evening was largely a triumph for Imogene Coca who was reunited with Caesar after a separation of four years and two other Caesar TV wives.

There is something rather Chaplinesque about Miss Coca—the sad eyes, the dainty movements, the wispy air. It may sound precious but I thought her finest caper Sunday night was a feisty five-second introduction to a commercial during which she mimed a girl applying the sponsor's lotion.

Munsel Spoof Revealing ANISS Coca's spoof of "Patrice Munsel revealed another side of her comedic genius—her talent for the broad gesture, Caesar was less successful during the same routine when he tried to rake over Frank Sinatra.

However, and Miss Coca worked in beautiful tandem in a sketch of two single people trapped into a dinner by a pair of matchmaking friends. It was the sort of thing Caesar does best—a chipping away at the customs of middle class urban life.

The only annoying aspect of the evening was the audience. I almost sounded as if a Caesar fan club had been planted in the seats with everyone breaking up each time Caesar exhaled. The show was funny, but not that funny.

Incidentally, the Trendex ratings on the show were quite good. Caesar had a 25.8 against 21.6 for CBS-TV's "C.E. Theatre" and 14.5 for the first half of the NBC-TV "Chevy Show."

Look back: Maria Callas on the CBS-TV "Person to Person" show Friday came over rather poorly—Artificial in her manner, and descending in her opinions. She is badly advised in her use of make-up, too. Her eyes are so thick with gock she seems to be wearing a mask. NBC-TV's "Omni-bus" production of "La Perichole" was lastly mounted, but the comic opera itself struck me as quite uncomic—Inane dialogue, flabby music, a nonsense plot. Cyril Ritchard lowered above everyone in the casting.

An unqualified rave for "Blas in Centralia No. 5," the CBS-TV "Seven Lively Arts" show Sunday. It was hardest-hitting, most gripping, most deftly turned out hour of its kind I can recall in recent TV history. Big thanks for director George Roy Hill, narrator Ken Robbards Jr., and especially big one for Maureen Stapleton, one of our larger dramatic talents.

Dina Shore and NBC-TV did well by guest Frank Sinatra in the "Chevy Show" Sunday—the half-hour I caught was a charm-

Proclamation

Designating February, 1958 as American History Month.

WHEREAS, it becomes increasingly necessary that people of the United States of America, both young and old, be reminded often of the sources of the freedom they enjoy; and

WHEREAS, the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution is sponsoring the nationwide observance of February, 1958, as American History Month; and

WHEREAS, in addition to February being the birth-month of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Susan B. Anthony, the year, 1958 is the Centennial of Theodore Roosevelt and the Bicentennial of James Monroe.

NOW THEREFORE, I, George Frazier, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Hope in the State of Arkansas,

DO HEREBY, proclaim the month of February, 1958 as American History Month and call upon all organizations, both public and private schools, and all other citizens to emphasize and encourage the study of American History, in order that our people may better appreciate their good fortune in living in a free country based on the dedication of our ancestors to the love of self-government and personal freedom.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have set my hand and caused the Seal of the City of Hope to be affixed this 27th day of January, A. D. One Thousand and Nine Hundred Fifty-Eight.

Mayor George Frazier

er, CBS-TV's "Twentieth Century" dip into "The Face of Crime" was another plus achievement. Sunday, Am 1-getting, sort of. If you watch CBS-TV's "The $4,000 Challenge" next Sunday, check the face of contestant Larry Rivers! He looks like a young version of the show's emcee, Ralph Sanz.

The channel swim: CBS-TV's "Phil Silvers Show" and "Mr. Adams and Eve" will swap time periods (three weeks) from now. Gene Gordon, who used to play the high school principal on the "Our Miss Brooks" series, joins the cast of NBC-TV's "Sally" starting Feb. 16. "Sally" will be buried by NBC TV after March 30.

Bob Cummings and the cast of his NBC-TV show are taking a two-week break from filming his series to cater in a play "Holiday for Lovers" at a new playhouse in Palm Beach, Fla. ABC radio has a special "American Heart Assn. one-shot coming up the evening of Feb. 14 that'll feature Frank Sinatra, Rosemary Clooney, Bob Hope, Doris Day, Jimmy Durante, Helen Traubel and Alfred Hitchcock.

H-Bomb Proves Potent Source of Power

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Britain reported today both have achieved "fruitful and promising results" in experiments aimed at harnessing the H-bomb reaction to produce industrial electric power.

But both countries, in simultaneously released statements, made it clear that any attainment of such an objective is many years away.

At the same time, Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission said the scientific reports released today by the two countries show that "certain comparative observations which have been published in recent weeks about British and U. S. progress in this field have been not only misleading but lacking in any foundation of fact."

Strauss' statement obviously referred to some British press reports that Britain had forced ahead of the United States in the research several months ago but that Strauss had exerted pressure to delay any announcement of it until the United States could catch up. Strauss denied exerting any effort to suppress the British report.

In a news conference called to make the announcement, Strauss said the two countries are "neck and neck," so close "that there is no difference between them" in the status of their respective research programs.

Dr. Willard F. Libby, another AEC member, said the progress reported today constitutes a "major step forward," but not a "major breakthrough" in the quest for hydrogen-produced power, Strauss agreed.

Dr. J. L. Tuck of the Los Alamos, N. M., scientific laboratory, said that even if the goal of tapping economic power from the hydrogen reaction never is realized, some of the processes now being used in the research "give distinct hope of helping problems of space navigation."

Today's scientific reports actually showed that each country had achieved a certain result which the other had not.

The United States reported achievement of a temperature higher than those reported by the British—six million degrees centigrade against five million.

The British, on the other hand, reported sustaining the temperatures for a longer period of time—for periods of thousands of a second as compared with millions of a second reported by the Americans.

The higher American temperatures were achieved in particular experiments that began just last month, whereas the British apparently achieved theirs several months before.

Neither country, however, alluded to any significance in such differences in results or time when achieved.

Temperatures of at least 100 million degrees—sustained for perhaps several seconds—would be required to obtain useful power from the hydrogen, or fusion, reaction.

United States officials in today's report also said that an analysis of the British results indicated that in the particular apparatus used by the British, an "unknown process" must be in operation.

The American report added: "How this process behaves under different conditions may be of great importance in the design of a controlled thermonuclear reactor."

STAINBACK SELL TICKETS

LOS ANGELES (UP)—George Tucker Stainback, a major league outfielder from 1934 to 1946, has been named to work in the Los Angeles Dodgers' ticket department under business manager Harold Parrott. Stainback also played with the Los Angeles club in the Pacific Coast League in 1932-33 and 1947.

RECORD GATE POSSIBLE

CHICAGO (UP)—A sellout of the world middleweight title bout between champion Carmen Gasitola and Ray Robinson March 25 would produce a gross gate of $560,465 and a net of $467,633.90 for a new indoor record. Middleweights Tony Zale and Rocky Graziano drew a gate of $422,918 in 1947 for the old record.

Our County Paper 94 Years Old

Washington Telegraph

W. H. Etter of Washington, grandson of the paper's founder, came across this issue of the Washington Telegraph, dated Wednesday, May 28, 1844, while going through the old paper along with the "Washington" portion of the metal name-plate which plate had been recovered from a ploughed field, to The Star— which photographed and engraved the historic sheet.

Despite its 94 years the sheet is wonderfully well preserved and the type is bright and crisp. The news type is perfectly legible in the original and in Hope Star's photo copy, but is obscured in the engraved copy above owing to reduction in size and the "screen" of the engraving process.

The original Washington Telegraph printed page is 16½ inches wide by 22 inches deep, slightly larger than Hope Star's page, which measures 16½ wide and 20½ deep. The original 16½x22 page in order to fit the engraving machine had to be reduced to the plate seen above— 6 by 8 inches. Most amazing fact of all is this:

The above solid page of type was entirely hand-set. The linotype wasn't invented by Ottmar Mergenthaler until 1885— 21 years later.

In 1804 there was no place named Hope; Washington was the key town of southwest Arkansas—and the Washington Telegraph was the county and regional newspaper. It was a weekly, of course. Back in those days, owing to hand-set composition, even the New York dailies didn't carry as much reading matter as Hope Star does today— thanks to the machines of the 20th century.

Proclamation

Whereas the Interdominational Youth Council of Hope, Arkansas, has designated the week January 28 to February 2 as youth week; and

Whereas youth week is designed to point out the part young people play in the life of the church and the church's responsibility toward its young people, to give youth an opportunity to make a Christian witness through co-operative action and through their faith, to help strengthen the unity of Christian youth across all America, and to help enrich the lives of all mankind without regard for racial, creedal, cultural and national barriers; and

Whereas the 1938 Youth Week theme, "Lord, . . . Help Our Unbelief" is set forth to make young people throughout the world, as well as here in our own city, conscious of their lack of faith in God and their great need to learn of Christ; and to challenge them to assume their responsibilities as Christians; and to remind them of the need of continuing to grow throughout their lives;

Therefore, I, George Frazier, mayor of the city of Hope, State of Arkansas, proclaim the week January 28 to February 2 as Youth Week, and urge our citizens to acknowledge the outstanding contribution made by the youth of our nation and to assist in every way possible the promotion of this youth program.

George Frazier
Mayor of Hope, Ark.

Deaths of Noted Persons Around World

By UNITED PRESS

OSLO Norway— Argentine ambassador to Norway, Carlos Acuna, 70, who was appointed to the Oslo post last year, died Sunday in the Red Cross Hospital here. Acuna, born in 1868, entered the hospital Saturday when he suffered a heart attack. His body will be sent to Argentina for burial.

NAPLES, Italy — A heart attack killed one of this city's leading singers, Gennaro Pasquariello, 85, Sunday. Pasquariello began his career at 18 when he was fired from his uncle's tailor shop for burning a vest he was ironing. The singer wore flashy vests on stage and in private life, setting off a fad for vividly colored vests among Italians which has lasted for 50 years.

PATTERSON, N.J. — Charles K. Barton, 71, banker and former president of the New Jersey Senate, died Saturday at the Patterson General Hospital. Barton, a Republican, was elected to the state Senate in 1943 after serving in a series of appointive public offices. He was Senate majority leader in 1946 and president the following year.

GLENWOOD LANDINGS, N.Y. — David S. Hill Jr., 62, a former New Jersey assemblyman, died of a heart ailment Saturday night at Community Hospital, Glen Cove, N.Y. Hill, who served in the state assembly from 1945 to 1951, sponsored a bill creating the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Park at Oyster Bay, N.Y.

NEW YORK—Former president and board chairman, George C. Boldt Jr., 78, of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel died at his home here Sunday after a long illness. Boldt, whose father founded the original hotel, at Fifth Ave. and 33rd St., Manhattan, was trained for 10 years shortly after his graduation from Cornell University to take over the presidency.

Most pores of the body are concentrated on the palms of the hands, soles of the feet and the scalp.

Short of midday, Ward Sebastian and Sam Lester brought their pack string in at Henry Gallatin's ranch. The place was jammed with troops, furious with activity. Supply wagons that had creaked their way in from Yreka, or down from Fort Klamath and Linkville, were parked in tired lines, some empty, some being unloaded.

A troop of the First Cavalry, hard-bitten, hard-riding, just in from Fort Bidwell over past the Warner Mountains, were selling up a picket line. Army mules and horses were eating deep into Henry Gallatin's supply of winter hay.

Leaving Sam Lester to hold back the pack string, Ward Sebastian went ahead and sought out the grizzled, stocky, stern-eyed owner of the ranch, To Sebastian's question, Henry Gallatin nodded.

"Bill Wiggin is waiting for you at Vinegar Spring. Too much fuss going on around here to suit him. He's anxious for the supplies for Homer Shadworth."

"I got them for him," Sebastian considered the military activity all around about, then added soberly, "What do you make of it, Henry?"

Gallatin shrugged. "I don't like it. But there is nothing I can do about it. They got to do what Washington tells them to do. Colonel Wheaton—he's in command right now—is a good man. But he's not enjoying the chore ahead one bit."

Substantially stirred restlessly. "How far back does Modoc tribal history run, Henry? Far older than either of us might guess, probably. Yet here, right

CARACAS, Venezuela— Former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron, in the Dominican Republic embassy in Caracas where he took refuge after the overthrow of Venezuelan strongman Marcos Perez Jimenez, on his exile in Venezuela.

"I am very thankful for the hospitality I have received in Venezuela."

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Prof. George Kimble, head of Indiana University's geography department, on whether man will ever learn to control the weather:

"To judge from the indifferent luck many meteorologists have with their 12 to 24 hour forecasts, we are still far from understanding local weather; let alone controlling global weather."

HONG KONG—William Downey, son of Mrs. Mary Downey of New Britain, Conn., who accompanied his mother and two other American women to Red China for a visit with their imprisoned sons, on prospects for their release:

"The leniency expressed by the Chinese allows us to retain our hope."

ANKARA, Turkey — Turkish Foreign Minister Fatih Rustu Zorlu, on the participation of Secretary of State Dulles as a non-member observer in the Baghdad Pact talks:

"The critical importance of this meeting is shown by the presence of Mr. Dulles."

WASHINGTON— American ambassador to Moscow, Llewellyn E. Thompson, following his return home for consultations, on the Russian drive for East-West talks:

"We can expect the Russians to do a lot of maneuvering. They will try to get in the strongest position possible."

Ordinarily, Ward Sebastian and Sam Lester would have been long gone from the Gallatin ranch, would have had their outfit on the trail by the first touch of daylight. But this was a day holding a harsh and momentous fascination, and Sebastian found he could not ride away from it. Along with Henry Gallatin and Sam Lester he listened to the shilling bugles and watched the troops take formation and move off into the wet curtain of the fog.

Sam Lester stirred restlessly, scowling.

"I've cursed them more than once, the military, I mean. They see them moving out like now and somehow the feeling gets me that I ought to be going with them, even though they're heading into a ruckus I don't believe in at all, and am set to shoot down some poor Modoc devils I figger got as much right to live as we have."

"That's right," Henry Gallatin agreed. "I've plenty of sympathy for the Modocs, as you well know. But I feel sorry for them soldiers. Lots of them ain't much more than boys, who got little idea what they're heading into."
